

Our Recommendations for Your Trip to Gmund

By car or bus:

From the north: Drive along Autobahn A8, which connects Munich and Salzburg. Leave the autobahn at the Holzkirchen exit and continue along Route B318 / B307 toward Tegernsee. Turn left at the traffic light in Gmunder Berg. You'll reach the paper factory soon after crossing a little bridge over the Mangfall River.

From the south: Either via Inntal, Achenpass and Route B307 via Tegernsee or via the Inntal Autobahn, Autobahn A8 (which connects Munich and Salzburg), leaving Autobahn A8 at the Irschenberg exit. When you reach the town of Gmund, turn right before Gmunder Berg. You'll reach the paper factory soon after crossing a little bridge over the Mangfall River.

Parking: Parking spaces for automobiles and buses are available behind the factory site.

By rail:

Long-distance trains from throughout Germany and elsewhere in Europe arrive daily at Munich Hauptbahnhof (main train station). Change trains there and board one of the hourly trains of the Bayrische Oberlandbahn (BOB) for the quick and direct onward journey to Gmund. Get off the train at the railway station in Gmund. It's about a 10-minute walk from the station to the paper factory: follow Hauptstraße, continue past Café Wagner, cross the intersection and follow the Mangfall River downstream. You'll reach the paper factory after crossing a little bridge.

By airplane:

Munich Airport is about a one-hour drive (ca. 90 kilometers) from Lake Tegernsee. The S-Bahn (suburban train system) regularly and directly connects the airport and Munich Hauptbahnhof (main train station). After you arrive at the train station, you can travel to Tegernsee either by rail (BOB) or by boarding an overland coach (RVO).
